Program Description

This day-long event will train participants to effectively use EMDR Therapy with military and combat veterans. Participants will receive information on military culture, phases of deployment, risk and protective factors for combat stress exposure, and the unique characteristics of combat veterans and their families. The training presentation will link this material to each of the eight phases of the Standard EMDR Protocol. Video examples will be included to demonstrate effective EMDR Therapy practice with this population.

Opportunities for questions and discussion will be provided for both on-site and online participants.

This training is specifically designed to equip community-based mental health clinicians previously trained in EMDR Therapy to serve US veterans and their families through the recently developed VA Patient-Centered Community Care (PC3) program. EMDR Therapy has been recognized and endorsed by the US Veterans Administration & Department of Defense as an evidence-based practice since 2003.

PC3 is a Congressionally-mandated, nationwide VA program that provides eligible veterans access to care when the local VA medical facility lacks available specialists, has long wait times, or is geographically inaccessible. PC3 is the VA method of purchasing care from community-based providers. The Choice Program is a temporary supplement to PC3 that will provide more flexibility for veterans in accessing care until it expires in August of 2017.

About the Trainer/Presenters

Ted Olejnik, LICSW, LADAC-1 retired from the U.S. Air Force after 24 years & has been working in the mental health field for over 30 years. He is a Vietnam veteran, a former US Army Social Worker, a current VA clinician and former VA Suicide Prevention Coordinator. He is also an EMDR Approved consultant and EMDR trainer. His main clinical interest is treating military veterans experiencing posttraumatic stress.

Mark Nickerson, LICSW is an EMDRIA Approved Consultant, EMDR Trainer, Co-Regional Coordinator of Western Mass EMDRIA, 2014 President of the EMDRIA Board of Directors, a and a current EMDRIA Board Member. He lectures, trains, and consults locally, nationally & internationally on topics including treatment for problematic anger hostility and violent behavior; psychological trauma; family conflict; men's issues; the needs of combat veterans and their families; and the impact of social stigma and oppression. He is the author of The Wounds Within: A Soldier, A PTSD Therapist, and A Nation Unprepared.
